
Lest We Forget Competition 2014

As part of our First World War Centenary Programme, the Lest We Forget Poetry Competition gives you the opportunity to articulate your response to war, in poetry or prose. The theme for this year is Duty and Adventure. Using an historical or a contemporary lens, you can write about those who went off to fight, or those who were left behind. The competition also gives you, or a designated person, the chance to perform your work on Anzac Day in the Hall of Memories. Send your entries to the address below. Entries must arrive no later than Wednesday 16 April 2014.
